PERSPECTIVES ON WRITING

Series Editors, Susan H. McLeod and Rich Rice

The Perspectives on Writing series addresses writing studies in a broad sense. Consistent with the wide ranging approaches characteristic of teaching and scholarship in writing across the curriculum, the series presents works that take divergent perspectives on working as a writer, teaching writing, administering writing programs, and studying writing in its various forms.

The WAC Clearinghouse, Colorado State University Open Press, and University Press of Colorado are collaborating so that these books will be widely available through free digital distribution and low-cost print editions. The publishers and the Series editors are committed to the principle that knowledge should freely circulate. We see the opportunities that new technologies have for further democratizing knowledge. And we see that to share the power of writing is to share the means for all to articulate their needs, interest, and learning into the great experiment of literacy.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We sincerely appreciate the support from the Perspectives on Writing Series editors Sue McLeod and Rich Rice. We know that the many voices that comprise Composing Feminist Interventions are stronger based on Sue and Rich's helpful suggestions, as well as on the feedback of our anonymous reviewers. We want to express our appreciation and gratitude to WAC Clearinghouse copy editor Brandy Bippes, whose careful attention to a full manuscript draft brought additional clarity and focus to the conversations shared across chapters. We also are deeply indebted to Mike Palmquist and honored to have Composing Feminist Interventions published by the WAC Clearinghouse/University Press of Colorado; we thank Mike for his patience, his time, and his expertise. It has also been an honor to learn with and from the strong feminist teacher-scholars who have shaped the goals of this project. It has been both a privilege and a pleasure to collaborate with the many feminist teacher-scholars who shared a bit of themselves through their discussions of community-based pedagogy and inquiry as forward-thinking activism. Thank you to our many contributors, with a special thanks to Krista Ratcliffe for her insightful, gracious afterword.

Kris: I first want to thank my frequent and fabulous collaborator, Lee Nickson. Composing Feminist Interventions evolved while we were both working at Bowling Green State University, over many coffee conversations that I greatly miss given our distance. I am immensely grateful for such collaborations with Lee and with other colleagues, mentors, and mentees throughout my career, all of whom have helped me foster a recursive relationship between feminism and community activism in my teaching and research. Finally, I want to acknowledge my husband, Kevin Williams, and my mother, Angela Blair, for their constant love and encouragement over the years. Without their support, projects like this would not be possible.

Lee: Composing Feminist Interventions provided me the opportunity to learn, question, laugh, and, perhaps most importantly, to imagine possibilities with many feminist colleagues working across subfields of our discipline. My experience co-editing this collection leaves me hopeful that feminist, activist work has meaning for students and our communities well beyond our classrooms. My warmest thanks to the APA wonder team of 215 East Hall: Sara Austin, Lauren Garskie, Kristin LaFollette, and, in particular, Kelly Moreland. And thank you to the always-inspiring Kris Blair. I learned long ago to seize any opportunity to collaborate with Kris as an invitation to observe an embodied example of the feminist, activist spirit of the collection before you.
