Wiring the Writing Center
CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS VII

INTRODUCTION Straddling the Virtual Fence ix
Eric H. Hobson

PART I: Models and Strategies for Wired Writing Centers

ONE The Look and Feel of the OWL Conference 3
Barbara Monroe

TWO Email “Tutoring” as Collaborative Writing 25
David Coogan

THREE Reflection and Responsibility in (Cyber) Tutor Training: 44
Seeing Ourselves Clearly on and off the Screen
Rebecca Rickly

FOUR WAC on the Web: Writing Center Outreach to Teachers 62
of Writing Intensive Courses
Sara Kimball

FIVE Have You Visited Your Online Writing Center Today?: 75
Learning, Writing, and Teaching Online at a Community College
Clinton Gardner

SIX The Other WWW: Using Intranets to Reconfigure the 85
Who, When and Where of Network Supported Writing
Instruction
Kurt P. Kearcher

SEVEN Wiring a Usable Center: Usability Research and Writing 103
Center Practice
Stuart Blythe
PART II: Critical Assessments of Wired Writing Centers

EIGHT
Drill Pads, Teaching Machines, and Programmed Texts: Origins of Instructional Technology in Writing Centers
Neal Lerner
Page 119

NINE
Virtual High School Writing Centers: A Spectrum of Possibilities
Pamela B. Childers, Jeannette Jordan, James K. Upton
Page 137

TEN
The Community College Mission and the Electronic Writing Center
Ellen Mohr
Page 151

ELEVEN
Random Memories of the Virtual Writing Center: The Modes-to-Nodes Problem
Ray Wallace
Page 163

TWELVE
Computers in the Writing Center: A Cautionary History
Peter Carino
Page 171

PART III: Resources for Wired Writing Centers

THIRTEEN
UnfURLed: 20 Writing Center Sites to Visit on the Information Highway
Bruce Pegg
Page 197

FOURTEEN
Computers and Writing Centers: An Annotated Bibliography
Steve Sherwood
Page 216